Mr. Robert Amory, Jr.,
Deputy Director (Intelligence)
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C.

Dear Bob:

Thanks for your letter. I intended to call you the next day just to prove that a rugged constitution can survive even how I felt that night. It was short but rather trying at the time. I was particularly sorry not to have had a chance to hear you talk. I understand I also missed some fairly forceful comments from Mr. Perlman.

I do appreciate very much your having made the effort to come and perhaps some time when I have twice as many people absolutely, solidly lined up I can get you on short notice again since I think there is a good deal you have to tell them.

Regards, and I hope we will see each other before too long.

Sincerely

Grinnell Morris
